41. Washington Gas will track and account for its system-wide and District-specific Merger-related savings, and transition costs to enable those savings, in all base rate cases filed during the first five-years post-merger or in its next two base rate cases if the second base rate case is not filed within the first five years post-merger. Washington Gas will amortize the transition costs over five years, will not seek recovery in rate proceedings over those five years of any amortized transition costs or any corporate costs allocated from AltaGas, ASUS, or any other affiliated entities to Washington Gas in excess of Merger-related savings, and will ensure that customer rates reflect an annual net benefit to Washington Gas’s District of Columbia customers of not less than $400,000 per year over the five years following Merger Close commencing with the first post-Merger base rate case (i.e., $2 million over five years). In the event that Washington Gas files a base rate case in the District of Columbia prior to Washington Gas capturing the anticipated savings in the test period for such a rate case, then Washington Gas will consent to a ratemaking adjustment to reduce Washington Gas’s revenue requirements by an amount that is needed to guarantee that base rates include net cost savings of $400,000 if the net cost savings in the test year are less than $400,000 as a known and measurable reduction in Washington Gas’s cost of service during the new rate-effective period. In determining if net cost savings of at least $400,000 are included in base rates, the additional charges to Washington Gas from AltaGas, ASUS, and any other affiliates, and Merger-related savings, will be considered in the determination. “Transition costs” as used in this commitment are incremental non-recurring costs to facilitate the integration of the companies. “Merger-related savings” as used in this commitment refers to the tangible financial benefits achieved as a result of the Merger for the five years after Merger Close that would not have been possible if the individual companies were to continue to operate separately. As part of this commitment, Applicants are guaranteeing that costs charged to Washington Gas’s ratepayers in the District of Columbia, considering Merger-related savings, will not be higher as a result of the merger. 76. AltaGas recognizes the scientific consensus that human activity – primarily GHG emissions and the conversion of land for agriculture and development – is contributing to changes in the global climate including changing weather patterns, rising sea levels and more extreme weather events. We believe that actions must be taken now to stabilize and reduce emissions in line with the international goal of preventing temperatures from rising more than two degrees Celsius by the end of this century. Climate change presents risks to AltaGas and our operations, but also provides it with an opportunity to be part of the solution. These factors underlie AltaGas’s commitment to continued change and improvement in its operations, and provide an evolving portfolio of clean and renewable products and services to communities AltaGas serves. This includes measures to address climate change and other public interest issues such as air quality, and including the District’s Sustainable DC Plan and Clean Energy Plan.	Continuous	Continuous
